Pardon my overlooking my living circumstances in Janesville in my first Progress article. In an effort to steward the housing allowance the First Council authorized, I chose a residence close to First, the Guardian Angels Bed and Breakfast. The convenient location is unmatched though I have a primary residence in Lauderdale, MN. Commuting 11.5 hours roundtrip is poor stewardship of the natural and consumer resources we share especially the gift of time. To that end, I am blessed that I have a temporary Janesville residence as we complete interim ministry.

In learning about Janesville, I located on the internet a 2014 summary report about the impediments to housing in Janesville and Greater Rock County prepared by the Janesville city manager. Explanations were offered for the acknowledged impediments and strategies to confront, reduce, and eliminate them.

Impediment #1: Inadequate Support for Non-English Speaking Residents
Impediment #2: Lack of Loans to Minorities
Impediment #3: Lack of Quality, Decent, and Affordable Housing Units
Impediment #4: Lack of Quality, Decent, and Affordable Rental Housing Units
Impediment #5: Lack of Rent Assistance (Section 8) Funding Availability to Meet Affordable Housing Need
Impediment #6: Ongoing Need for Fair Housing Education Outreach

The theme for our Lenten worship and witness is shelter. Having shelter ends homelessness. According to the 1990 Message on Homelessness by the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America “being homeless is being without -- shelter, without resources, without support, without recognition, without power to influence society.” “Being "houseless" is lacking a permanent place to stay dry and warm, a place to feel secure, a private space.”

Our worship is a public space where all are invited whether their shelter is permanent and/or temporary. During the Lenten season, we will gather for 5 Wednesday evenings (3 in March and 2 in April) to give thanks and praise to our Triune God and listen to those committed in seeking and securing safe shelter. Your presence is for welcoming at 5:30 p.m. dinner, followed by 6:30 p.m. worship (in the nave) with the following speakers on sheltering.

Deacons in the ELCA: Who, When, and Why?

As we prepared for Pastor Mae Jean’s departure, she strongly encouraged me to begin talking openly about what it means in the ELCA to be a rostered leader, how the roster includes both pastors and deacons, and their distinctive calls within our denomination. The past year has made it evident to me that the role of deacons across our Church is likely to, over time, become essential as the number of retiring pastors exceeds those seeking ordination. In addition, there have been cues that help me to realize that our churchwide and synod leaders are fully embracing ministry partnerships between pastors and deacons.

For instance, Bishop Viviane Thomas-Breitfeld gathered together the deacons of our synod for a meeting during her first official week in her new role. At that meeting, she encouraged us to use the title “Deacon”, to begin wearing stoles with our robes (at least for special occasions), and talked with us about the distinctions between those called to Word and Sacrament (pastors) and our call to Word and Service (deacons). Following that meeting, Bishop Viviane wrote a three-part introductory series, “An Introduction to Ministers of Word and Service” for What Matters, our synod newsletter. Of all the topics she could have selected in her first months as a bishop, she chose to educate all of us about deacons and how our ELCA calls us to ministry.

To help us understand, let’s look at what it means to be a rostered leader. After all, we have many exemplary paid and volunteer leaders in our churches. What specifically does it mean to be “rostered” in the ELCA? In short, rostered leaders have been monitored by the synod’s Candidacy Committee while taking seminary coursework and completing internships, and have been formally approved for call. They are called to serve as either “Ministers of Word and Sacrament” as pastors, or “Ministers of Word and Service” as deacons. The word “deacon” means one who serves. Deacons are lay leaders who have answered the call to serve in the Church.

Now, some of you may know that the ELCA, until recently, had three different categories (which included Associates in Ministry – the category into which I was commissioned) that were officially combined into one roster of deacons. After much debate across the ELCA about the new term, in 2016 synod representatives from across the country voted to use a word recognized by churches throughout history and around the world. The use of “deacon” also puts us in congruence with our full-communion partners in the Episcopal, Presbyterian, and United Methodist Churches. The earliest deacon of the Bible was Stephen. (See Acts 6: 1-6)
Recently I began using “Deacon Peg Haeger” as my signature, reflecting recent updates in our First Lutheran Church constitution. If you have questions about those updates that bring us into alignment with the ELCA, I would be happy to talk with you.

So, that brings us to the question: what actually distinguishes the two different rosters?

Most importantly, deacons do not preside at Holy Communion and Holy Baptism – the only two sacraments in the Lutheran Church. Pastors also pronounce absolution at Confession. In all other ministries, pastors and deacons work side by side.

The biblical basis of diaconal (relating to deacons) roles are rooted in Jesus’ emphasis on service and ministry of relief to the poor, care for the sick, and justice for the oppressed. This servant ministry was of great importance in the early church. Present-day deacons fill a wide variety of roles. For example, our own synod’s communications are the responsibility of Deacon Vicki Hanrahan. Others serve as chaplains, parish nurses, directors of pastoral ministries, parish nurses, or faith formation coordinators. While my call is only 15 hours per week of service at FLC, some of our synod’s deacons work full-time alongside their pastors to meet the needs of congregations and service organizations. Our roles are designed to fill unmet needs in the ministries of the church.

The partnership of pastors and deacons is essential to the future of our work in God’s world. If you have an interest in serving as a deacon, I would love to have conversation with you about the process.

Finally, I continue to thank you – the wonderful people of FLC – for the opportunity to serve in this capacity. Each time I stretch into a new way of serving I grow in faith, I experience the thrill of new learning, and I experience the love of new relationships together in Christ.

Deacon Peg Haeger

Report - Financial Peace University
By Beth Bloedel

Financial Peace University is a program developed by Dave Ramsey Solutions. It asked the question, What would it look like if the people of God started handling money God’s way? We had 9 sessions over 9 weeks and committed to spending that time learning what the bible says about how we as Christians manage our money.

Our group represented 6 households. Statistically we started with over $212,000 in non-mortgage debt and 25 credit cards. Nine weeks later we had reduced debt by $30,100 and cut up 18 debt enabling credit cards and learned how, going forward to manage our future without the stress of debt financing.

This journey has begun, it may take years to complete, but we now have the tools to finish and win financial freedom for ourselves and our families.
